

THE STAR'S DAILY PICTORIAL PAGE

THE EVENING STAR, WASHINGTON, D. C., WEDNESDAY, MAY 31, 1922.

An unusual photograph of the President delivering his address at the dedication of the Lincoln Memorial. His talk, by the use of gigantic amplifiers, was heard all over the country at radio stations.
Copyright by Harris & Ewing.

Presidential party at the Grand Army of the Republic memorial exercises at Arlington national cemetery yesterday. President Harding took no part in the exercises, attending merely as a spectator.
National Photo.

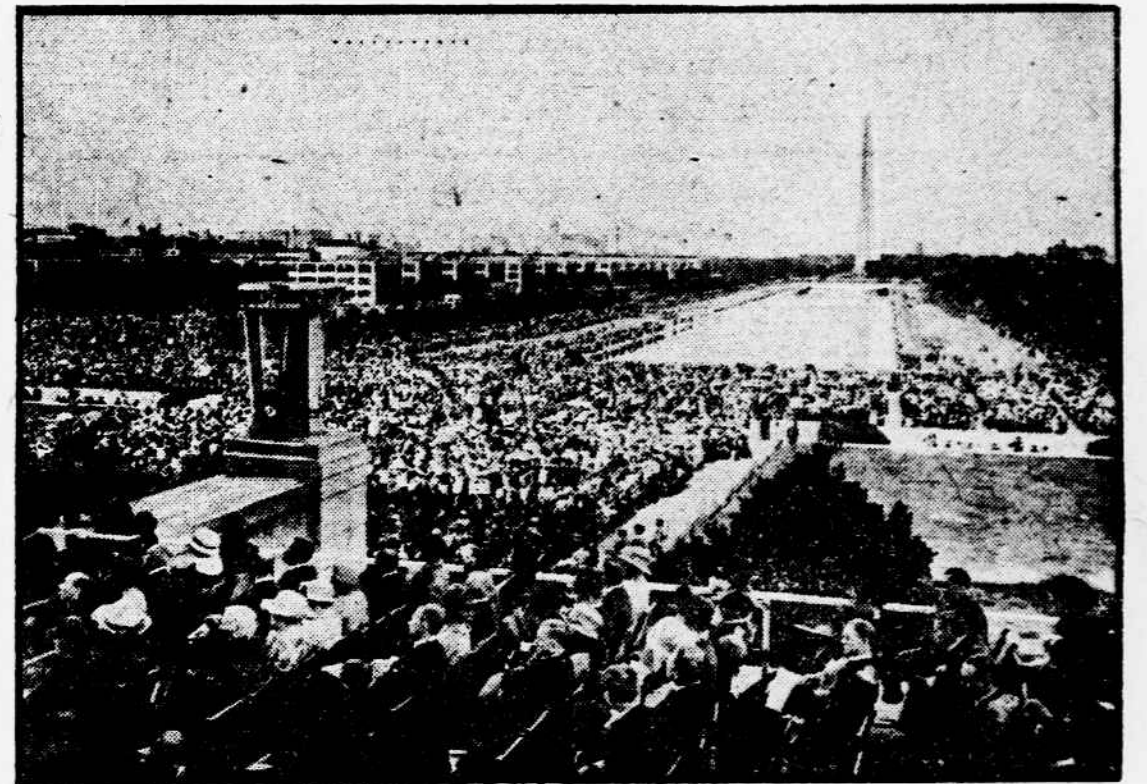

The arrival of Robert Lincoln, son of Abraham Lincoln, at the dedication ceremony of the Lincoln Memorial yesterday.
National Photo.

Mrs. Blanche Bellak, president of the Philadelphia Chapter of American War Mothers, placing a wreath and gold star on the grave of America's unknown soldier at Arlington yesterday. She represented the war mothers of America.
National Photo.

Walter Hagen, one of America's premier golfers, sails for England to enter the British open golf tournament. Jock Hutchison holds the title, won last year.
Copyright by Keystone.

A general view of the dedication ceremonies at Lincoln Memorial, showing a portion of the vast crowd. By use of the amplifiers, the thousands were able to hear distinctly all of the addresses.
National Photo.

"Uncle Nick" Altrick and "some other clowns" at the Masonic base ball game yesterday afternoon. Nick and his crowd kept the fans in a fine humor, especially when the game lagged.
National Photo.

Ambassador Jusserand of France arriving at the White House with the American flag which he presented to President Harding. The flag was raised over Eiffel Tower in Paris on April 20, 1917, to mark the entrance of the United States in the world war.
National Photo.

Ladies' Drill Corps of Monumental Chapter, Eastern Star, of Baltimore, going through their special drill at the Masonic base ball game yesterday.
National Photo.

One of the sidelights of the Memorial day observance in Washington. This photograph was snapped at Arlington national cemetery, where graves of the heroic dead were covered with blooms.
National Photo.

Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, Count Laszlo Szechenyi, Hungarian minister to the United States, and Mrs. Szechenyi at the dedication of the Lincoln Memorial.
National Photo.